

PHOTO BOOK: ANTARCTICA

Meditating atop glaciers with Orlando Bloom was just another day in the "office" for Bloom's cousin, photographer Sebastian Copeland, 43. The pair took a three-week expedition way down south for Copeland to take shots for his book, Antarctica: The Global Warning, part of his work with the Global Green Initiative to raise awareness about planetary warming.

"Orlando is a high-end camera caddy," jokes Copeland about his cousin (above left, in Antarctica in 2006), adding that Bloom also "has quite the adventurous spirit." In the evenings, the pair played chess to pass time. Pals Salma Hayek (above right, in '05) and Jake Gyllenhaal joined the excursion in northern Canada.

Copeland snapped this lethal leopard seal from 40 inches back. "I don't get frightened," he says, "if I have an exit strategy."

Melting ice, Copeland writes, "is projected to raise ocean levels by as much as 20 feet" within a couple of centuries.

